APPENDIX B

CORPS AND ARMY TROOP LIST

FY 1970

1. GENERAL

This troop list is published as a guide for use in preparing instructional material for resident and nonresident instruction. It also is used as an aid for the student in the study and solution of tactical exercises. This list is corrected to 1 June 1969.

2. TYPE ORGANIZATION

The number and type of units in this list are based on the requirements for a type field army organized with three corps composed of airborne, airmobile, armored, infantry, and infantry (mechanized) divisions. Official TOE and strengths are shown for all divisions and separate brigade artillery units. TOE marked with an asterisk (*) are draft TOE and are tentative.

3. NUMBERING SYSTEM FOR ARTILLERY UNITS

The last digit of the regimental number for all artillery units identifies whether the unit is towed (odd numbers) or self-propelled (even numbers). For nondivisional units, blocks of ten numbers (40 series, 50 series, etc.) are used to denote the classification (cannon, rocket or missile) and/or the caliber of weapon used. This system of numbering applies only to USAFAS instruction. Artillery organic to separate brigades is not so designated.

5. DESIGNATION OF ARMY DIVISIONS

a. The army divisions are organized and identified as follows:

- (1) Airborne.
- (2) Airmobile.
- (3) Armored.
- (4) Infantry.
- (5) Infantry (Mechanized).

b. Generally speaking, any proportion of maneuver battalions (infantry, tank, etc.) may be assigned to any division base. Division bases are organized and equipped to best control a majority of their own type maneuver battalions. Typical proportions of maneuver battalions for each type of division base are as follows:

Airborne	Airmobile	Armored	Infantry	Infantry (Mechanized)
9 Abn Inf Bns	8 Inf Bns	6 Tk Bns 5 Inf (Mech) Bns	8 Inf Bns 2 Tk Bns	7 Inf (Mech) Bns 3 Tk Bns

c. Once organized, a division should retain its type designation (Airborne, Armored, etc.) even though intratheater attachments or detachments may temporarily change the preponderance of assigned maneuver battalions.

6. ASSIGNMENT OF UNITS

The divisions listed herein are organized according to the combination of battalions shown in para 5b. It is emphasized that each division will be assigned the types and number of battalions needed for the strategic mission it is to be given and that the structures shown in this troop list are examples only. The divisions employed in USAFAS instruction are as follows:
